

Day By Day With The Cross

By James A. Varni.

Australian Catholic Truth Society No.0970 (1945)

PREFACE.

“If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me.” (Luke 9:23.) These are the words of Jesus, in which He emphasises the taking up of our cross daily, if we want to be His followers. Since, to be Catholic, we must be followers of Christ, daily should we make use of every available means that will enable us to observe Our Lord’s injunction.

Day by Day with the Cross has been prepared for that one purpose. It will serve its greatest usefulness if but three trifling suggestions are heeded:

- (1) Each morning, read the “Short Meditation” (in the section immediately after this preface), and then the indulgenced prayer, or the quotation (based on the Imitation of Christ) assigned under that date.
- (2) Have the intention to gain the indulgence (which, unless otherwise stated, can be gained as often as the prayer is said), and then recite the prayer at times during the day.
- (3) Form a daily resolution on what you have read.

{All the Indulgences listed are now classified as ‘Partial Indulgences’.

All this is simplicity itself; and should not require even one full minute. Truly but a minimum of time for so great a spiritual gain as we daily take up our cross to follow the Saviour.

JAMES A. VARNI.

A SHORT MEDITATION FOR EVERY DAY.

The Past? — Where is it? It has fled.

The Future? — It may never come.

Our friends departed? — With the dead.

Ourselves? — Fast hastening to the tomb.

What are earth’s joys? — The dews of morn.

Its pleasures? — Ocean’s writhing foam.

Where’s peace? — In trials meekly borne.

Where’s joy? — In Heaven, the Christian’s home.

January 5: Grant, O Lord, to keep us this day (or this night) without sin. (Indulgence: 500 days, morning or evening).
